Summer Session II June 17 – August 12, 2005

Woodburn Hall 119 12:30 – 1:20 pm
Online Learning every Monday, Tuesday, & Friday
In-Class room instruction every Wednesday & Thursday

Introduction

Welcome to the study of the Old Testament/Hebrew Bible! Who wrote the Bible? Why was it written? How should we read the Bible? Is the Bible true? The purpose of this course is to give you tools and experiences to answer these questions and to understand the history and literature of the Old Testament/Hebrew Bible within its ancient Near Eastern context. Please note that we meet IN-CLASS each Wednesday & Thursday, the other days of the week will be online learning experiences. To learn more about online learning see section “Instructional Format” on page 6 below.

Grading & Assignments

The maximum number of points for the class is 1000, which can be translated into the following letter grades.

1000-970	A+	899.870	B+	799.770	C+	699.670	D+
969.930	A	869.830	B	769.730	C	669.630	D
929.900	A-	829.800	B-	729.700	C-	629.600	D-
						599-0	F

Pre-test: 2.5% / 25 pts (Week 0)

The purpose of the pre-test is for the instructor to get to know you better, to understand what you already know about the course topic. This knowledge will help the instructor prepare lessons and assignments more specifically for your learning needs. You will receive full points for completing the “Pre-test.” This pre-test is NOT graded on how much you know or how smart you are.

Learner Action Plan: 2.5% / 25 pts (Week 0)

The learner action plan is completed after the 1st class and confirms that you have read and understood the syllabus. You receive full points simply for completing the “Learner Action Plan.” (note for the future: make it more clear in the future that I want students to share their own objectives)

Active participation: 10% / 100 pts

Learning requires effort, and part of that effort is displayed through active participation. What expectations are there for participation?

- You should log in at least once each day to Oncourse to check for
 - New announcements
 - New discussion topics
 - Updates and responses to ongoing discussions
 - Assignment updates
 - Returned & graded assignments
- Get involved in the discussions & group work
 - Actively read/hear what others write/say
 - Share your reasoned perspectives on topics, questions, issues, etc.
 - Use proper netiquette: <http://www.albion.com/netiquette/corerules.html>
 - Be respectful of differences! The world is a much more interesting place when you learn to respectfully hear and understand people different from you.

Short Quizzes: 10% / 100 pts

These short quizzes are designed to help you evaluate your performance in the class and how well you are grasping the key concepts and ideas of the course. This is the way that it works. There will be a short quiz available via Oncourse twice a week, posted right after the lecture (1:00pm) on the day indicated by the assignment sheet. Each quiz will only be available for a 24 hour period. As with all other tests in this course, the quizzes are closed book, open mind. There will be a total of 16 quizzes. You can take as many of the quizzes as you like, but only your top 10 scores will count towards the total grade. Each quiz is worth 10 points each. If you regularly take these quizzes you will be more likely to perform well on the course overall.

Weekly quizzes: 20% / 200 pts

Longer quizzes will be administered immediately before the in-class discussions as noted on the assignment sheet and are worth more points than the short online quizzes. There are 6 weekly in-class quizzes. All of them will be administered in class on the day specified, except for the first weekly quiz which will be administered online (June 24).

How do the quizzes work? Very simply. One the days of the in-class quizzes, at the beginning of class I will hand out a sheet with four (4) questions. You will be given fifteen minutes to answer three (3) questions of your choice (closed book, closed notes of course).

How should you prepare for weekly quizzes? It is quite simple. Do the readings. Answer the study questions listed on the homework page. Pay attention to lectures (take notes etc.). Do the short online quizzes. And participate in the discussions. Weekly in-class quiz questions will be drawn from questions posed for homework (either for personal study or for the online discussion) or major questions posed and answered in the lecture (incidentally, some possible study questions can be found chapter by chapter on the Collins textbook CD-ROM).

The purposes of the weekly quizzes are fourfold: 1. to keep you an active learner in the class; 2. to reinforce learning multiple times of key concepts and ideas; 3. more evenly distribute points and learning requirements across the course so as to avoid pinning your entire grade and memory on a final exam; and finally, 4. to prepare you for the final exam.

There will be a total of six weekly in-class quizzes throughout the semester. As a special bonus, you are allowed to either skip one weekly quiz or drop your lowest weekly quiz score. Thus the five quizzes counting toward your final grade are worth 40 points each.

Short paper: 15% / 150 pts (Week 3)

5-6 PARAGRAPHS persuasive / argumentation paper. You will be graded on organization and strength of argument, clarity of writing, and handling of the biblical material. This is NOT a research paper. It is an exercise to get you to closely read the biblical text and to construct persuasive interpretations of what you read. For more information, see Homework activities for June 28. Additional instructions and guidance will be posted on Oncourse.

Longer paper: 20% / 200 pts (Week 8)

Five (5) PAGE persuasive / argumentation paper. You will be graded on organization and strength of argument, clarity of writing, and handling of the biblical material. This is NOT a research paper. It is an exercise to get you to closely read the biblical text and to construct persuasive interpretations of what you read. The Anchor Bible Dictionary or an instructor approved Biblical commentary may be allowed to guide your argument. For more information on the longer paper, see “Homework Activities” for July 27. Additional instructions and guidance will be posted on Oncourse.

Late Papers

If papers are submitted late, the paper loses ½ grade point per day late. For example, a “B” paper turned in two days late will be marked down to a “C+”. For plagiarism and academic honesty issues, please see “Course Policies” below.

Final exam: 20% / 200 pts (Week 8)

The final exam will administered IN CLASS on the last day of the course at 12:30pm. It will be a 60 minute exam and will follow the general format of the study questions, weekly quizzes, and short quizzes. If you have special needs or scheduling conflicts with the final exam, please notify me by the end of Week 3 (July 1).

Course Policies

Academic honesty:

Cheating, plagiarizing, etc. will not be tolerated. I trust each of you to use your gifted mind to share your own thoughts. If you use the thoughts of others I expect proper references. If you plagiarize you will receive an automatic “0” on that assignment and possible expulsion from the class. To learn more about plagiarism and how to avoid it you can earn ten points towards your final grade for completing this tutorial <http://www.indiana.edu/~istd/>. To learn more about proper citation please see: <http://www.lib.berkeley.edu/TeachingLib/Guides/Internet/Style.html>

Academic Conduct

Instructional Format—Online learning

General

Most of us are accustomed to sitting in a classroom while a professor talks at us. This course will be different in that regard. We will still cover all of the same material that is found in a traditional course. However, much of our interactions in our community of learners will be over the internet using Oncourse (<http://oncourse.iu.edu/Default.asp?action=login>). For some of you, this may be a new learning experience, and it promises to be an exciting one. Lectures will be delivered through audio lectures with accompanying Powerpoint presentations. These will be accessible each day either through Oncourse, or on CD-ROMs that I will provide for each of you if Oncourse is down (see also the document posted on Oncourse entitled “Learning Tips for the Old Testament Lectures”). All material is copyrighted, so please do not copy or distribute it. It is for this class’s learning purposes only.

Now, online learning is not necessarily easier than a regular class. It requires the same amount of effort to perform well, and sometimes more if you need to learn how to use the electronic tools. Please note that although the internet is available 24/7, I as an instructor am not. I will be regularly available during office hours M, Tu, F 1:20pm-2:00pm. I will make a concerted effort to respond to all emails or other electronic communication within 48 hours.

Are you new to online learning environments? Have no fear, for they are friendly places to interact, learn, discuss and grow. If you want to become a good online learner, please refer to the document entitled “Distance Education Student Primer: Skills for Being a Successful Online Learner” by Paul Alford & Amy Lawson.

Oncourse

What is Oncourse? Oncourse is a user-friendly, online learning environment. Think of it as a classroom, library, coffee-house, student lounge, and instructor office all rolled into one. If you have never used Oncourse before, it is a simple tool to use. Become familiar with this environment by reading the document entitled “Student Guide to Oncourse.” I also invite you to take the easy Oncourse tutorial which can be found here: <https://oncourse.iu.edu/help/studenthelp.html>. Please also note that Oncourse is offline and inaccessible everyday from 5:00am – 6:00am.

Learning Tips for This Course

We have a condensed time frame during the summer session to cover all the material from a 16-week course. To maximize your learning experience you should plan to spend 3 hours per day Monday-Friday on this class: one hour in class time and two hours with homework

- Before class (1 hour): Do all assigned readings before class time
- During class (1 hour): Participate in the interactive lectures and bring your NRSV Study Bible
- After class (1 hour): Complete study questions, do short quizzes, and participate in discussions.
- Be willing to ask questions of me thalver@indiana.edu or others class members.
- If you are looking for general support with college study skills and habits please contact the SAC (Student Academic Center). They have many resources to support good study skills and habits: <http://www.indiana.edu/~sac/>

Office Hours

I will be available Monday, Tuesday & Friday for 40 minutes from 1:20 pm - 2:00 pm. You can reach me at thalver@indiana.edu or via a designated chat room on Oncourse.

Special Needs

If you have learning disabilities or any special needs please inform me immediately so that we can make appropriate arrangements for this to be a successful learning experience for you.

Schedule Conflicts

If you have any time conflicts with any assignments, exams, or classes, you must notify me by June 24. Arrangements can be made to accommodate for religious observances, IU sponsored extracurricular events (such as if you are an athlete) etc. But again, you must notify me by the June 24 to make arrangements.

Course Changes

This syllabus and the assignment document represent the master plan of how the instruction and learning for this course will proceed. However, these documents are subject to change. You are welcome to suggest changes at any time which may be negotiated for implementation, although there is no guarantee that suggested changes will be implemented. If any major changes will be introduced into the instruction or syllabus, all students will be promptly notified by the instructor.

Important Court Notice

“Religious Studies Courses in a State University: The U.S. Supreme Court (Abington v. Schempp) in 1963 encouraged the objective study of religion and the Bible. This is why we teach an introductory course to the Old Testament/Hebrew Bible at [IU]. However, the approach here is different from that taken in a religious group. We will concentrate on what the text originally meant in the light of its ancient Near Eastern setting rather than on what the text means for us today. You do not have to have a faith commitment in this course, nor will you be asked to abandon your faith. My purpose is to increase your knowledge and understanding of the Old Testament/ Hebrew Bible, and to help you think carefully and in new ways about what it originally meant. You will earn a good grade in this class the same way you do in other courses, not by being more religious.”¹
