COURSE DESCRIPTION

Return to the top

This course is as much about the use of film to study religion as it is about the use of religion to study film. In other words, we will use different genres of films to facilitate discussion about various dimensions of and issues in religion. And conversely, we will use images, metaphors, and teachings found in religion to discuss the layers and elements visually and audibly portrayed on screen. Through the three critical approaches of theology, mythology, and ideology this course will examine how religion, as variously defined, pervades the modern cinema and how one may engage in dialogue with this phenomenon..

WARNING

Some of the films viewed in this course contain scenes of explicit violence, sexual brutality, and offensive language. It is not our intent to de-sensitize students, but rather to enable them to discuss the relevant issues that these films introduce.

COURSE GOALS

Return to the top

1. To think, discuss, and write critically about film from a religious studies perspective.
 2. To broaden understanding of the term "religious" and then to realize its significant role in film plot, narrative, and imagery.
 3. To foster insight into other perspectives through a careful examination of one's own thinking.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

Return to the top

1. CLASS ATTENDANCE

- Weekly class attendance for the tutorials and lectures is required. Whether you decide to stay for the screening or view the film on your own time, you are responsible for the content of each film in the course.

2. WEEKLY ASSIGNMENTS

- Weekly assignments are distributed during tutorials and then collected the following week at the start of the class. They may also be accessed through the web-site. These are simple, one-page inquiries concerning your impressions or interpretations of the film as directed by a question from the instructors. They should not take more than 15-45 minutes to write. Considering that class-time is limited, the number of students are many, and 20% of your grade is based on participation, we use the weekly assignments to give every student the opportunity to voice their opinions. The assignments will be assessed essentially on how much thought we think you put into them. If you like you may e-mail your responses to us BEFORE each Wednesday class.
- These assignments are not meant to substitute for in-class discussion but rather to facilitate them. The expectation is that you will verbalize some of your well-thought out ideas before your peers and as a result promote a more engaging debate.
- LATE ASSIGNMENTS will NOT be accepted. The point is to have what are uniquely your thoughts on record BEFORE the discussion. There are no excuses accepted, medical or otherwise.
- Please make personal copies of the work you submit because it will not be returned.

3. WEEKLY READINGS

- Each week's readings concern the film viewed that evening and therefore are part of the following week's discussion.

4. GRADED TERM WORK

- A First Paper - 5 pages (25%) Topic & Due Date: February 10, 1999.
 1. This will be a critical analysis of a film using one of the three methodologies presented in Screening the Sacred.
 2. Papers reflecting U of T standards are expected and graded accordingly. If you are unclear about these standards, please see the "Grading Regulations" section of the Arts & Science Undergraduate Calendar (p. 498 in the 1998-99 edition).
- A Second Paper - 10 pages (35%) Topic & Due: March 24, 1999.
 1. This will be a comparative analysis of two films.
 2. Papers reflecting U of T standards are expected and graded accordingly.
- Late papers are accepted but with a deduction of 1% per day - NO exceptions.
 1. No penalty will apply if you present a valid U of T Student Medical Certificate and/or an explanatory letter from your college registrar.
 2. And once again, late weekly assignments will simply NOT be accepted, no exceptions.)
- Weekly assignments are simply NOT accepted late

5. FINAL IN-CLASS TEST

- The test, worth 20% and held on Wednesday, April 7, is based on the lectures, films, and all required readings. It will be made up mostly of short answer and multiple choice questions, and include one essay question.
